
CONTRIBUTORS

Rebecca Yeomans-Stephenson is a current fourth year student at Michigan State University from Okemos, Michigan, who will graduate in the Spring of 2024 with a Major in History and a Double Minor in Museum Studies and Women's Studies. Rebecca is fascinated by the American Revolution and Civil War periods, in particular studying the influence of newspapers, espionage throughout these periods, and the role of women across history. Rebecca intends to pursue a Double Masters in History and Library and Information Science, specializing in Archives, and an eventual Doctoral Degree in American History.

Pace Garry Schwarz is a senior ('23) at Georgetown University studying History and "Science, Technology, and International Affairs" with a focus on labor history and racial politics. Fascinated by cross-disciplinary research, he seeks to include elements of philosophy, sociology, international relations, and gender studies into his historical inquiry. Hailing from Baltimore, Maryland and Burlington, Vermont, he hopes to continue working in labor advocacy, telling the stories and singing the songs of changemakers past and present to honor this rich radical tradition. He performs with the Georgetown Chamber Singers and various student-run theater companies.

Jacob Novak is a graduating senior from Michigan State University, originally from Fenton, Michigan. He is pursuing a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science Pre-Law and History, with a minor in Leadership of Organizations. After graduation, he plans on pursuing a dual-degree program to receive a Juris Doctorate and a Master of Business Administration before eventually entering into business law. His historical interests center around 19th and 20th-century China, focusing on the role nationalism and gender had in the country's development. Additionally, he has an interest in the extensive history of capitalism and communism in a global setting..

Edward Yuan graduated this year from the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, Canada where he grew up. With a major in History, Edward is interested in colonial and anti-colonial political economy as well as the history of the Third World which he will continue studying in graduate school after a gap year. In particular, he's currently researching the socio-economic history of deindustrialization in Northeastern China following market reforms in the 80s as well as Arab-Chinese financial ties during the Cold War..

Andrew Post is a senior at The University of Alabama. He is from New City, New York, and currently lives in Baldwin Place, New York, which are outside of New York City. He is majoring in Political Science and History, and is minoring in Liberal Arts through the Blount Undergraduate Initiative and General Business. His historical interests include US foreign relations, socialist movements, and legal history. After graduation, he intends to take a year off before applying to law school this fall. He aims to work in antitrust law, and hopes to run for office one day and get involved in politics.

Josiah Haller is a recent graduate of Georgetown College (KY) with part of his degree earned at Oxford University through a partnership program at Georgetown. He majored in History and earned a minor in Philosophy, Politics and Economics (PPE), and he studied English History and Ancient Philosophy at Oxford. His research mostly focuses on the history of education and its relation to philosophy and politics, though he has a passion for interdisciplinary research of any kind. He plans to become either a teacher or an education policymaker, and in the fall he plans to attend Florida State University for a Master's in Classics.